Yosemite Environmental Science Research Training Program

A National Science Foundation (NSF)-funded Research Experience for Undergraduates (REU) Program

What: Environmental science research

When: June 15th - August 23rd, 2014

Where: Yosemite National Park, California

Why: Conduct scientific research in one of the most remarkable places in the world. Mentors for research projects are faculty from the University of California, Merced, and scientists from Yosemite National Park and the US Geological Survey. Research projects will focus on the animals, plants, lakes, rivers, meadows, mountains, people, and places of Yosemite

Who: You? Undergraduates from any college or university in the United States are welcome to apply

How: apply online at http://snri.ucmerced.edu/Yosemite_REU

For more information, contact Prof. Stephen Hart, Prof. Michael Beman, or Dr. Rebecca Fenwick at yosemite.reu@gmail.com